Beware of Scrofula

Berofula is probably more general than any other disease. It is invidious in character, and manifests itself in running sores, pustular eruptions, boils, swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, sore eyes, etc. Hood's Barsaparilla expels all trace of scrofula from the blood, leaving it pure, enriched, and healthy.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles Hood's Barsaparilla, and am cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

C. A. Arnold, Arnold, Mc., had scrofulous sores for seven years, spring and fall. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured him.

Salt Rheum

Is one of the most disagreeable diseases caused by impure blood. It is readily cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier.

William Spies, Elyria, O., suffered greatly from crysipelas and salt rheum, caused by handling tobacco. At times his hands would crack open and bleed. He tried various prepsaparilla, and now says: "I am entirely well."

THE NORTHERN LIGHTS.

Lemstrom's Conclusions—Aurora Borcalis

But let us leave the domain of theory and see what has been found in the realm of facts regarding this strange and beautiful display. It may seem singular to say that the northern lights have been manufactured by man—made to order, so to speak—but such is really the case, or, at least, claimed by Professor Lemstrom, in charge of the Finnish International Meteorological Station, at Sodankyla, Finland. A copper wire mounted on telegraph poles was wound around the apex of a small hill, covering about 3,000 square yards, from top to bottom, in a spiral course as it ascended the hillside grade, points like those on a lightning-rod pointing upward being fastened to the wire every foot and a half, one end being connected with a conducting metallic disk sunk in the earth. Many interesting experiments were made with this singular apparatus, but the most startling was when it was used by nature itself and, the air seemingly overcharged with electrical force, an auroral glow sprang into the air from the multitude of points, which light, analyzed by the spectrum, was identical with that of the northern was intended. But let us leave the domain of theory which light, analyzed by the spectrum, was identical with that of the northern lights. From this fact, indeed, Lemstrom very naturally concluded that the aurors borealis was a terrestrial display, or very near the surface of the earth, but in these claims he has been stoutly contested by others, many of whom claim that the distance to the auroral arcs has been measured to a considerable degree of accuracy, and they all agree that it is quite high, supra-atmospheric, supposing the air to be forty-six miles deep. It is too much within the domain of dry mathematics to discuss at length the different methods employed by dif-ferent observers to determine the height, but the results attained would Harness, Double and Single he ground, and has produced it in an artificial way therefrom. Sir John Ross, I believe it was, who said that he For light driving and for heavy work.

HARNESS PARTS, All Kinds.

HOSS, I believe it was, who said that he and some companions distinctly saw a brilliant ray of the aurora pass between him and a high snow-covered hill not many miles distant. Sir John Franklin's measurements in North America show it to be seven miles high. The French at Bossekop, Norway, as early as 1838-9, got it up to between 60 and 120 miles. Tromhelt puts it at about 70, and he has made more measurements and studied this part of the sub ject closer than most physicists. Nor-denskjold, the Arctic explorer, puts it 118 miles, which Professor Fearnley follows closely at 125, and Newton gets follows closely at 120, and Newton gets but 5 miles more, or 130, as a result of his deductions. Somewhere in the vicinity of the numbers given above will probably be found true values, if they are ever determined, and it may be that all are within the true limits, for, like the clouds, as one of the above HILLSBORO HARDWARE CO.

Ior, like the clouds, as one of the above authors remarks, the auroral displays may be found to have wide limits in their heights. Bergman does not rest contented, however, until he has published the height at 486 miles, Mairan 485 and Research at 486 miles, Mairan 485 and Boscovich at 825. I have not given all authorities, but probably the most reliable and the greatest extremes. The extent of the auroral displays over the world is not uniform, the United States being the most favored, while States being the most invored, while Siberia, opposite to us across the pole, but much further north, is the least. New York City has about the same frequency of auroral displays as St. Petersburg and London, and also as Siberia, more than half way up the Behring Sea coast, fully 1,500 to 2,000 miles nearer the pole. They are seen as far south as Cuba, Yucatan, Central Mexico, and Capa St. Jucasa, co. the Mexico and Cape St. Lucas on the American Continent, while in Asia they are unknown in Pekin, and almost so in the Japanese Islands, Southern Europe, on the latitude of New York city, being just within the limits of visibility. Grant's Freedom From Anxiety.

Twelve o'clock had come and gone, and one o'clock was at hand, when there came a pause in the conversation; then a moment of reflection on the past of Sharman in the conversation; then a moment of reflection on the part of Sherman, whose deeply lined face and brilliant, sleepless eyes I see now as plainly as I did then, turned towards and lighted up by the red glare of the blazing logs, and bright with intelligent and energetic life. Then came a quick, nervous upward glance at me, and then the following remark: 'Wilson, I am a great lowing remark: 'Wilson, I am a great deal smarter man than Grant; I see deal smarter man than Grant; I see things more quickly than he does. I know more about law, and history, and war, and nearly everything else than he does; but I'll tell you where he beats me and where he beats the world. And this vigorous and graphic speech is the best description of the fundamental characteristics and differences of the two men I have ever heard. ences of the two men I have ever heard. It shows not only a profound self-knowledge on the part of Sherman, but a profound, comprehensive, and discriminating estimate of the personal peculiarities of General Grant; for it is peculiarities of General Grant; for it is true that the latter was never scared by what the enemy might be doing beyond his sight. He gave his best attention to learning the position, strength, and probable plans of his adversary, and then made his own plans as best he might to foil or overthrow him medifying or changing them only as best he might to foil or overthrow him, modifying or changing them only after it became clearly necessary to do so, but never lying awake of nights trying to make plans for the enemy as well as for himself; never countermanding his orders, never countermanding his troops, and never annoying or harassing his subordinate commanders by orders evolved from his imagination. He never worried over what he could not help, but was always cool, level-headed, and reasonable, never in the least excitable or imaginative. He always had the nerve to play his game through calmly and without any external exhibition of uneasiness or anxiety; and this was constitutional with him, not the result of training nor altogether of reflection. It was his nature, and he could not help it. The sanguine and nervous elements were so in a hurry or a heat, and, above all, it was impossible for him to borrow trouwas impossible for him to borrow trou-ble from what he did not know to be cer-

is a secret aid to beauty. Many a lady owes her freshness to it, who would rather not tell, and you can't tell.

Helpless.

A professor in a medical college once said to his class "put your hand in a vice, turn the acrew until the pain is all you can bear, and that's rheumatism; turn the acrew once more, and that's rheumatism; turn the acrew once more, and that's neuraliza—and gentleman, the medical profession knows no cure for either." That was before the discov. ATHLOPHOROS which does and w ery of ATHLUPHORUS quickly cure both rhounatism and neuralsis, and many physicians use it regularly—frankly admitting that they can prescribe nothing clas so effective.

Many persons have tried so many so-called remedies, without benefit, that they have no faith to try more, but it is worth your while to try Athlophoros. If you have any doubts as to its value write for names of parties in your own State who have been cured by its use.

Ask your druggist for Athlophoros. If you cannot get it of him we will send it express paid on receipt of regular price—$1.00 per bottle. We profee that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it do not be persuaded to try somathing else, but order at once from us as directed,

REGULATE THE LIVER AND PREVENT Dyspepsie, Constination, Jauridice, Billious Attacks, Chilis and Fever, Head-ache, Collo, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Piles, etc.

TONIC, ALTERATIVE AND CATHARTIC I SIMMONS LIVER REQULATOR, purely vegetable is the medicine generally used in the South to arouse the Torpid Liver to a healthy action.

It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy on the Liver and Kidneys. The action of the Regulator is free from names or griping. It is most effective in starting the secretions of the Liver, causing the bile to act as a cathartic. When there is an excess of bile in the Stomach, the Regulator is an active purge; after the removal of the bile it will regulate the bowels and impart vigor and health to the whole system.
